

California Appliance Efficiency Regulations

All of our vendors are expected to be aware that Pep Boys relies on your expertise about the products which we purchase from you. This includes your expertise regarding any federal, state or local regulations which apply to those products.

The California Energy Commission has adopted Appliance Efficiency Regulations which apply to a wide range of products, some of which you may supply to Pep Boys. If we are purchasing any products from your company which are subject to these Regulations, it is our expectation that you will work with your Pep Boys' partner to ensure that each such product either (1) meets the requirements of the Regulations, including that the product is identified on the online database which the California Department of Energy maintains of those products which are both subject to the Regulations and satisfy the requirements; or (2) is restricted for sale in California.

For any products which you supply to Pep Boys which you have not identified to us as subject to the Regulations, we will understand that per paragraph 6 of Pep Boys' Terms and Conditions, which are a part of the agreement you entered into with Pep Boys, you are representing and warranting to Pep Boys that such product is not subject to the California Appliance Efficiency Regulations
